Sunday.

Dearest Hubby dear: —

How I wish it was next Sunday! Dear, it will soon pass, don't you think? Lord! I do wish I was with you — you simply have no idea what I am going there. When I am down I will tell you all.

How, look are things at your end? Are things going smoothly? Hope so, and dear how are you? Take good care of yourself until I come down, hear?

Polly just this minute called up, and told me Mom came home from the Hospital. As soon as I get done writing to you, I am going up to the house to see her. Am sure glad that she was able to come home. Polly says she is weak, but of course that is to be expected.

Did you pass your second degree, honey? Sure do hope so, and hope soon, to have you a full Knight. I know dear you must be extremely happy to belong. When I am with you, you will tell me all about it.

Have been sewing all the day, and am extreme tired. Somehow I don't seem able to accomplish anything. Oh, Lord, will I be happy when I am once with you! The weather is simply wonderful out, and everyone seems to be enjoying themselves. Well, next Sunday, I guess our day will come. I suppose, you, too, must be as busy as a beaver working in our new home. Never mind, love, we, too, shall soon be happy.

I shall close now, love, with all my love, kisses.

Eternally
Frances.
